The season is too early for an acceptance of a ove the necessity of deciding between acceptance and refusal. Or it may render an acceptation of the Calhoun monument committee. He has contrived to pay a very pleasant tribute to the personal virtues of the great Carolinian, and ship and of the courage with which he maintained unpopular opinions in the face of the bitterest opposition, without committing himself to any apstitute Calhoun's chief claim to fame in the opinion of many of his enthusiastic fellow countrymen. There is no doubt of the truth of Mr. Cleveland's intimation that, if Calhoun's obnoxious views were better understood, they would be more kindly tolerated. Their practical unwisdom would not be the less condemned, but the honest convictions and unselfish purposes of the man would be recognized, to the advantage of the esteem in which his memory is held by Americans generally.

If Canadian cruisers don't stop firing shots at Yankee skippers, Lord Salisbury may have to propose an international commission to assess damages, not against the United States for trespass on British fishing grounds, but against Great Britain for asserting herself with unnecessary vigor. It might be prudent for our transatlantic cousins to reread the story of Geneva as well as of Halifax, and to reflect that, when the balance of international awards gets around to our side, the proportion stands as $15,000,000 to $5,500,000 in

An amendment to the Mexican constitution permitting the president of the republic to be elected to a second term will be submitted by the legislature, and will probably be approved by the people. The purpose of the amendment is to allow Gen. Diaz, who has at present the favor of the people, to continue in the presidential office without going through the form of yielding his position for a term to some one of his supporters, a course which would be necessary under the present constitution.

That after reading the Star this afternoon you may determine to purchase your Spring Suit. If such be your wise conclusion, at least come here and see what we have to offer in the way of styles and prices before going elsewhere. A obligate you to buy at all, but we imagine you will be seriously tempted to invest in one of ours before leaving. We do not mean by this that you'll be importuned to buy. Not at all; but the silent eloquence of our immense variety, the perfect body-fitting qualities of our Tailormade Suits for men and youths, and the low prices our marvelous business enables us to name for the goods we sell may prove too much for you, but you shall be both judge and jury in the case. And in any event we shall feel under obligations to you for your visit.

SAKS & COMPANY.

Possibly you may want a Spring Hat. If so, our stock and prices should by all means be seen. There's nothing in the way of Hats for men and boys that can't be found here, in every shade and shape that's stylish, and at prices that will surprise and please you.

Shoes, perhaps? Well, we've got them too, for men, women and children, in every grade worth keeping, in every style that's fashionable and comfortable, and at prices that-well! you must see them to realize what unheard-of bargains are to be found in our Shoe department.

A Scarf, or Tie, to wear to church to-morrow? Hosiery, Handkerchiefs, the latest ideas in Collars, Shirts, Underwear; anything and everything in the way of Gent.'s Furnishings are here in abundance, and at prices that only a House like ours can afford to name for goods of equal merit.

HOW.

To begin with, our Millinery business has been excellent so far. That's HOW we feel on that point. But the recent unfavorable weather has eriously affected our trade in Trimmed Hats and Bonnets. That's HOW we come to think of a refuction to sell what we have and make room for something new. The next question that presents itself is, HOW can we best do this? You may say it is easy enough to reduce goods. Did you know t took as much business sagacity to know HOW and when to make reductions in goods as it requires to originally mark them? So, after some deliberation, we concluded now was a good time to make a reduction in our Trimmed Hats and Bonnets. HOW wise this action is remains to be proven by the sales we make in these goods next

WHY will next week be a good time for you to indulge in a new hat? Because we will place on sale some superb values that have never been offered before, and cannot be offered again. Next week is that peculiar period which comes but once in a millinery season. It is the first reduction made when many very choice shapes and combinations are included. But the finer goods do not last long under these reductions. You must be on hand early next week if you want a choice. This reduction is made to stimulate business, and at the same time to advertise our Milliot good reasons WHY we shall ma
